WATTERSON'S OPINION.

Boone, Ia., Nov. 15.—Henry Watter-son, when asked today by the Asso-ciated Press for his opinion on William J. Bryan's tentative acceptance of the Democratic presidential nomination, declared that he had labored with Mr. Bryan to decline the nomination and quit the "dog-in-the-manger" attitude. Col. Watterson realized that Bryan had it in his power to demand the leadership of the Democratic party in 1908, or "de-feat any other candidate by knifing him as he did Parker." Bryan's acceptance was no more than he had expected, however greatly he regretted the action, because he thought Bryan could no longer create enthusiasm as he had been be-create anthusiasm as he had been before the people too many times.

Asked as to the assertion often made that the next president would be Roosevelt or Bryan. Col. Watterson said that the nomination of Roosevelt was all the Bryan supporters wanted, because they could then go to the people on the third-term slogan. Bryan could carry New England in such a campaign, he thought. Roosevelt would Mexicanize this government, holding himself as greater than Washington. As for himself, much as he disliked to do so, he would vote for Bryan against Roosevelt in such a dilemma. He believed, however, that Roosevelt would decline another nomination, as he had nothing to other nomination, as he had nothing to gain and the Republican party had many men of presidential caliber. He mentioned especially Taft, Highes and Crane of Massachusetts. He said the latter would make a strong man on the argument that New England had not had a president for a long time.
